Public Health / Whistleblowers

o In 2015, GAP continued our representation of a North Carolina poultry farmer and Purdue contractor who had allowed outside filming of his facilities to show the inhumane animal treatment and conditions at Purdue. The explosive story broke nationally at the end of 2014 with a blistering column by Nicholas Kristof of The New York Times. In 2015, GAP began representing a second Perdue chicken farmer and worked with this whistleblower to submit an affidavit in support of the allegations raised by the first Perdue contractor above. GAP drafted a petition on this new whistleblower's behalf that has already received over 100,000 signatures.

Corporate & Financial Accountability

o During 2015, GAP continued to receive serious requests to investigate whistleblower concerns and expanded our corporate and financial accountability efforts by litigating both ongoing and potentially new whistleblower reprisals cases, and investigating current and new confidential whistleblower allegations of bank and financial wrongdoing.

o In 2015, GAP completed a 6-month investigation of an entire region of the Department of Labor that indicated a profound failure at the agency in its application of all the corporate laws on whistleblowing. Most

The Parliamentary Assembly of the Council of Europe (PACE) Committee on Legal Affairs and Human Rights called for the COE and European Union member states to enact whistleblower protection laws that cover national security and intelligence taxing authority, including resolution of any related appeals or litigation processes, based on the technical merits of the position. The tax benefit to be recognized is measured as the largest amount of benefit that is more than fifty percent likely of being realized upon ultimate settlement, which could result in GAP recording a tax liability the would reduce GAP's net assets.

Management has analyzed GAP's tax positions, and has concluded that no liability for unrecognized tax benefits should be recorded related to uncertain tax positions taken on returns filed for open years 2012 - 2014, or expected to be taken in their 2015 tax return. GAP is not aware of any tax positions for which it believes that there is a resonable possibility that the toal amounts of unrecognized tax benefits will change materially in the next twekve months.

The Government Accountability Project (GAP) is a 39-year-old non-profit public interest organization that promotes government and corporate accountability by advancing occupational free speech, defending whistleblowers, and empowering citizen activists. We pursue this mission through our Public Health & Safety, International, National Security, Environmental Oversight, and Corporate and Financial Accountability programs. GAP is the nation's leading whistleblower protection organization.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a - First Accomplishment

o GAP advanced our investigative efforts in 2015 by continuing to conduct on-sight and in-person interviews with USDA meat inspectors from around the country. GAP also continued to help lead the fight against the USDA's Modernization of Poultry Inspection Rule (HIMP) by demonstrating the significant threats HIMP poses to the environment, how it places public health at risk, needlessly adds to the suffering of animals, and threatens the safety of workers who are already routinely exploited. To this end, in 2015 GAP worked closely with Compassion Over Killing and The Other 98% to develop a campaign brand that was incorporated into an interactive mobile responsive website. Through an interactive infographic, the website specifically engages, educates, and compels users to take action against the practices of Hormel's high-speed slaughter factories. The groups also launched a campaign petition on the new website, which, fueled by the successful launching of a public education e-mail blast campaign to Mother Jones' 240,000+ subscribers, generated over 325,000 signatures.

o In 2015, GAP continued to work with allies to challenge Ag-Gag laws in the states of North Carolina and Utah. Also, in August 2015, the court granted a motion for Summary Judgment from the Animal Legal Defense Fund, declaring the Idaho Ag-Gag law unconstitutional. The judge's decision borrowed language from GAP's amicus brief.

o Building off of GAP's critical work with meat inspectors, we designed, distributed and analyzed a survey of over 4,000 USDA meat inspectors on issues such as: HIMP efficacy, food safety, humane handling, and worker safety. In 2015, the results were combined with meat inspector reports detailing work-related illness, environmental hazards, and food safety concerns to inform our most comprehensive white paper in 15 years which we will release during 2016.

o In 2015 GAP's Food Integrity Campaign was regularly quoted in print and online outlets, such as Mother Jones, and had appearances on prominent radio shows including NPR and other influential public radio outlets. FIC's Director Amanda Hitt also appeared in a documentary set to premier at the 2017 Sundance Film Festival.

investigators of that region contributed to GAP's investigative findings.

o During 2015, GAP continued to raise awareness about the criminalization of whistleblowing that is increasingly occurring in the banking and finance sector. For example, in testimony before the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, GAP's Legal Director raised awareness that the criminalization of whistleblower disclosures was occurring across many agencies of government and well beyond those related to defense and national security. GAP called on Congress to declare that retaliatory investigations should be designated as an illegal prohibited personnel action that employees could challenge through the civil service system. The Senate hearing created a significant record for GAP's legislative campaigns in the 114th Congress.

o In August 2015, launched the next phase of GAP's Climate Science Watch -- Climate Science & Policy Watch (CSPW) -- to assess the actual implementation of the Obama administration's stated support for a strong climate policy and critique its behind-the-scenes actions that support accelerated fossil fuel development. GAP launched this expanded program after months of preparation by a team of contributors composed of climate science experts that GAP had mentored and worked closely with. As a central part of this effort, GAP launched public education investigations and campaigns on critical national issues, which highlight how the country and planet must phase-out fossil energy sources. In 2015, CSPW made significant progress on two of these fronts: one campaign was focused on educating workers about their rights while highlighting the environmental dangers of fracking, raising awareness on the issue and launching a regional public interest investigation into the practice; the other was designed to educate workers about their rights to blow the whistle while highlighting the dangers of the fossil extraction process and transport by rail and pipeline. GAP program officers were invited to speak on a panel at the national Railroad Safety: Workers, Community & the Environment Conference in Chicago to inform rail workers of their rights to blow the whistle and report environmental hazards on the railroad.

o The progress on these interrelated efforts were supplemented regular blog posts and relevant social media alerts/updates/news hits on the CSPW blog, Facebook and Twitter. These blogs in 2015 covered CSPW core initiatives and critical current events, including: the dangers of fracking and pipeline vulnerability as assessed in CSPW's popular Notes from Underground CSPW series, the President's Climate Action Plan and national climate change preparedness now and in the long-term, Off-shore drilling and the perils facing Alaska due to climate change, the 21st Conference of States Parties to the UN Framework convention on Climate Change held in Paris in November 2015, the Associated Press banning from its Stylebook the term "climate denier," the perils of climate denialist politics in South Carolina in light of the devastating storms suffered as a result of climate change, wildfires crisis and drought in California , and the Exxon revelations.

o In 2015 GAP launched an investigation into what ExxonMobil knew and when -- seeking to disclose details of material damage inflicted on taxpayer-funded US climate science and communications programs, and provide concrete examples of instances in which Exxon engaged in obstructing the Executive branch from fulfilling obligations under the law to assess the likelihood of potential climate change impacts and to communicate those impacts to Congress and the American people. In addition to raising awareness around these issues via strategic blog posts, GAP began developing a "Know Your Rights Campaign" intended to educate current government employees and former and current Exxon employees about their rights so that they may safely come forward to disclose any illegal activities the company may have taken against the public interest.

o In 2015, GAP released an addendum to our 2013 report: Deadly Dispersants in the Gulf: Are Public Health and Environmental Tragedies the New Norm for Oil Spill Cleanups? The whistleblower report detailed the devastating long-term effects on human health and the Gulf of Mexico ecosystem stemming from BP and the federal government's widespread use of the dispersant Corexit, in response to the 2010 BP Deepwater Horizon oil spill. Our 2015 addendum documented more severe human health effects, ranging from cancer to reproductive damage. GAP collected affidavits from dozens of whistleblowers, and studied data from extensive FOIA requests. Taken together, the record found that the use of Corexit has been more destructive to human health and the environment than the spill itself. Accordingly, in 2015, GAP continued to seek Congressional support for our efforts to inform and guide the rulemaking process over dispersant use. GAP also continued to represent the National Coalition to Ban Toxic Dispersants, which has national members ranging from those directly impacted by the BP oil spill, to oil spill response experts and concerned citizens.

community employees -- a development GAP was instrumental in securing.

o Throughout 2015, GAP worked with a surveillance coalition of leading civil society organizations assessing legislative proposals and advocating for both greater transparency and an end to unprecedented NSA surveillance. For example, GAP worked with the ACLU, Human Rights Watch, Brennan Center for Justice and Freedom of the Press Foundation to generate a groundswell of citizen activists calling on their Congress members to force critically needed surveillance reform. GAP also continued to advocate for the need for enhanced cyber-security reform measures that respect civil liberties and privacy. For example, in April 2015 GAP signed on to a letter by the ACLU and other open government and civil liberties groups opposing the Protecting Cyber Networks Act (PCNA). GAP also signed on to a letter by the Open Technology Institute opposing the PCNA, which would significantly increase the NSA's access to personal information and authorize the federal government to similarly use that information for a myriad of purposes unrelated to cybersecurity.

o As part of President Obama's Open Government Directive, in 2015 we began conducting a systematic review of government-wide training on existing whistleblower rights. This included the training of federal government ombudsmen at the Council of the Inspectors General on Integrity and Efficiency. We also prepared a video on the key provisions of the Whistleblower Protection Act and the WPEA. GAP's Legal Director provided the lecture for this presentation which the federal Office of Special Counsel is using to fulfill its statutory mandate to train agencies on whistleblower rights and protections. GAP played a leading role in developing both reform laws. These videos are available for free via YouTube to government lawyers, investigators, personnel advisors and managers.

o GAP began representing a top official in the Department of Defense Inspector General Office. We investigated his concerns and prepared a complaint to the Office of Special Counsel.

o GAP worked with several policy-making, investigative and other officials in implementing Presidential Policy Directive 19.

o GAP worked with several Congressional committees to help develop legislation to protect intelligence agency and other national security whistleblowers, as well as intelligence contractors.

o In 2015, GAP represented U.S. Air Marshal Robert MacLean in his successful Supreme Court challenge to his firing by the Department of Homeland Security and the Transportation Safety Administration.
